

Award Summary

The Fashion & Textiles Institute *Edge Award is an annual award aimed at encouraging and supporting fashion design, sportswear design, textile design, fashion photography and fashion marketing students to develop projects that forge new collaborations whilst pushing the boundaries of creativity and expanding current approaches to practice.

The award is intended to encourage students to be creative, connected and courageous to produce new and innovative work.

Applications will be considered from teams consisting of two or more eligible students who come from at least two FTI courses. Successful projects will demonstrate collaborative authorship right from the initial stages of the project, the co-creation of concept, and an integrated approach to development.

The project will be undertaken alongside assessed work, and should demonstrate its additional value to applicants' learning and general studies. Consideration should be given to methods of collaboration and how to make this work.

The Fashion & Textile Institute Edge Award is open to all second and third year students enrolled on a Fashion & Textiles Institute course for the 2017/18 academic year.

A single award of up to a maximum of £1500, will be granted to one successful team against a fully costed budget breakdown.

Award winners will be required to provide feedback on their experience and receipt of the award.

Award winners will be required to produce documented evidence of their process (e.g. records in the form of photos, video clips etc) as well as final outcome/s which may be used by FTI in promotional and teaching material, as well as in a departmental Edge Award exhibition as part of the FTI Graduate Show 2018.

Eligibility & Key Criteria

To be eligible to apply for the award:

- You must be enrolled for the 2017/18 academic year, on year 2 or year 3 of a course within the Fashion & Textiles Institute.

Key criteria for the award are:

- The award can only be used to fund the consumable costs of extra-curricular but subject-related projects. For example, this could include travel and accommodation costs to undertake a research trip or shoot; costs relating to undertaking specialist training or accessing specialist materials or facilities; purchasing specific materials and/or covering

- The award cannot be used to cover the cost of course organised trips or mandatory work; day-to-day expenses such as rent or food; or regular study materials.
- The award cannot be used to pay yourself or other students for time involved in undertaking or assisting with your project.
- The project or activity to be undertaken should be to create new and innovative work.
- The project should demonstrate its 'additional value' to the applicants - ie what will be gained above and beyond your regular studies within your course.
- Applicant teams must produce a fully thought-out project proposal to include full costings and details of how any additional costs (beyond which an award may cover) will be met.
- The proposal should show how the complementary skills of team members will be used to deliver the project. This can, and should, show team members using their specialist skills and knowledge to take responsibility for different parts of the project, but should also propose how areas of co-authorship will foster innovative practice.
- Projects must be completed by Monday 9th April 2018.
- Award winners must provide documented evidence of their process (eg. Records in the form of photos, video clips, blog, Instagram account) which may be used by the University in promotional and teaching material.
- Additionally, award winners will be required to provide feedback on their experience and receipt of the award, following completion of their project.

How to Apply

Students wishing to apply should complete the Fashion & Textiles Institute Edge Award application form which should outline your project proposal, include detailed costings and a 500 word (maximum) personal statement explaining why you feel your team would be a worthy recipient of this award.

Each partner involved in the application must be an eligible student and must include their details on the application form. All applicant partners must also sign a copy of the student declaration (on the last page of the application form), indicating their acknowledgement of the application and agreement to the terms of the award.

Completed applications should be submitted by email (as an attachment) to:
