Pre-course preparation

Project: essential

To help prepare you for your Fashion Marketing course we would like you to consider the following reading list.

Aim:

These resources are linked to your first modules and allow you to enhance your awareness of the fashion marketplace, develop your creative thought process and contribute to your subject-related research.

As marketers, we are at the forefront of commerce and communication, we understand the global standpoint, as businesspeople and as consumers. We are in a prime position to be able to shift opinions towards a more responsible way of being, to consider innovative ways in which the fashion industry can work towards positive solutions related to climate change, ethical practices, and economic stability.

This does not mean we are asking you to find all the answers over the summer, no, we merely would like you to investigate what those impacts might mean for the fashion industry of our future, we want to know what you think.

You may wish to document your thoughts in a sketchbook or digital notebook or simply read around the subjects to broaden your knowledge, we will be discussing these topics further within your modules, this will be very useful exercise that will contribute to your course assignments.

Topics we will consider in your studies, for example:

- The fashion cycle – brands > global supply chain > retail > consumer trends...
- Current technology used in the industry – digital fabrics/ clothing design/ e-tail / the metaverse /AI
- Fashion communications: social media / advertising /content creation / print media / fashion film / blogs and online influencers/ podcasts.
- PR + Events: fashion shows / cultural event / festivals /exhibitions.
- Fashion Industry News: pick out your latest favourite news-piece and comment on it.
- Global changemakers – not just directly related to fashion, may include; climate change, diversity, inclusivity and ethics.
- Your thoughts on the global status of the fashion and textiles industry
- Consider where you stand in this bigger picture and what you aspire to achieve with your studies and beyond.

Suggested reading

To get your Fashion Marketing thinking kick-started in the right direction we recommend you read the following report from Business of Fashion and McKinsey & Co. It is their latest update to the annual “State of Fashion” and “State of Fashion-Technology” reports. [available on both websites]

Below is a suggested reading list in order to prepare you for the forthcoming year. There is no requirement to buy all these books as they will be available in the library. Many are available as e-books, which you will have access to once you enrol and have been allocated a student email account.

Posner, H., 2015. Marketing Fashion: Strategy, Branding and Promotion - 2nd edition. Laurence King. (This is a core textbook).

Sethna, Z. Blythe, J., 2019. Consumer Behaviour 4th Edition. Los Angeles: Sage.

Blum, P., 2021. Circular fashion : making the fashion industry sustainable

Thomas, D., 2019. Fashionopolis: the price of fast fashion and the future of clothes. London: Head of Zeus.

Course costs

Materials and equipment:

Essential for the start of the course (costs estimated):

- Black hard-back sketchbook, white pages, A4 or 30cm x 30cm (approximately £10).
- Fine black writing pen or sharp pencil for sketchbook annotation (approximately £10).

Essential for the duration of the course (costs estimated):

- Black and white and colour printing (approximately £60 per year).
- Art materials for presenting work (approximately £30 each year).

Nice to have at the start of the course (costs estimated):

- Lecture notebooks, pens (approximately £15)
Although you may use digital notetaking. Please consider that you may be asked to put your mobile phones away for the duration of the teaching session.

It is useful to have the equipment listed below for the start of the course, but it is not essential (costs estimated):

- Scissors / scalpel blades + cutting mat (approximately £15).
- Glue or double-sided tape (approximately £5).
- Small metal ruler (approximately £10).

Fashion Marketing students have studio-based access to MacBook Pros (13" +15" Laptops) with access to Adobe Creative Cloud software and there are desktop Apple Macs accessible throughout the Design Centre and Library during opening times.

If you are considering purchasing your own laptop, to allow more flexibility to work off-campus, the following specifications are advised: Mac or PC with 16GB RAM and 512GB SSD, we also recommend a student subscription to Adobe Creative Cloud.

You can expect to spend approximately £200 on consumable materials for each year, e.g printing costs. This can be less in Year One due to the nature of the project (shared group work). In Year three the final major project is likely to cost in the region of £350-£400. This is for the purpose of, for example; a research trip or professional print production (magazines and publications). Where appropriate, we encourage and accept digital submissions. However, understanding and demonstrating digital translation to professional print is a key part of the course.

Study trips and costs: optional

We are expecting that there will be an optional study trip, e.g., to London during London Fashion Week in mid-February, which we hope all students can attend. The cost will be confirmed at the beginning of term but is estimated to be around £250, depending on student numbers. A non-refundable deposit will be required within the first weeks of term when confirmation of the trip will be communicated.

We run overseas study visits from time to time, for example to visit our educational partners, trade shows and exhibitions in major European cities. This will not take place in your first year, but you may like to know it's a possibility at some point during your three years. Trips like this are optional and we work hard to secure the best deals for accommodation and travel. A visit to a major European city would cost in the region of £450-500.

Students may choose to undertake a non-essential self-funded work placement/internship across the summer break between Stages two and three. It is worth considering what the cost implications of this may be if you are required to live and work in London or another location outside of Cornwall for three months or more.

Memberships: optional

Chartered Institute of Marketing Affiliated Membership

Joining the CIM as an affiliate member allows you access to a wealth of networks and resources and initiates your professional journey as a marketer. During the first term there will be a presentation to explain the benefits of CIM membership and the graduate gateway to which BA(Hons) Fashion Marketing at Falmouth is affiliated. Membership costs £65 annually and is paid direct to CIM.
